The EXPONENT ANNUAL 1940

Russ Smith...

Greenfield High School, Greenfield, Massachusetts

43 Teachers — 794 Pupils

To the Memory of

MABEL R. TURNER

Instructor in Home Economics in Greenfield High School

From September, 1924 to April 18, 1940

we, the Class of 1940, affectionately dedicate this, the eleventh Exponent Annual.

"She doeth little kindnesses which most leave undone or despise."

Such was the spirit which guided the life of Mabel R. Turner, into whose hands were committed the care and nurture of youth. Hers was a creative life, full and rich and beautiful.

May we remain ever mindful of her spirit of friendship and unselfish service, and thereby keep burning the light of her life, kindled with love, gentleness, and kindness.

To

ROBERT BRONNER

Counselor of the Class of 1940, we wish to extend our most sincere thanks and appreciation for the guidance advice he has given us during our last two years in Greenfield High School.

DONALD EDGAR BARTON

"Don"

Commercial Club (3, 4).

This happy-go-lucky lad who hails from Leyden is liked by everyone he knows. He is one fellow out of a hundred who can take kidding as he does and come back with a smile and no hard feelings. "Don" possesses a personality that will certainly help him reach his goal.

Greenfield High School is certainly proud to send such a grand worker on to Middlebury College, her chosen Alma Mater for next year. Success and popularity are sure to follow Rose in the future.

DOUGLAS RAYMOND BASSETT

"Doug"

Intramural basketball (2, 3).

"Doug" is so quiet a boy one hardly notices him at first. But at the second glance one finds his quietness surrounds intelligence and cleverness. He is a friendly person whom everyone likes.

EDWARD WALTER BANACH

"Ed"

Intramural basketball (3, 4); Printers' Guild (2, 3, 4).

"Ed" is one of the Print Shop lads with a pleasing personality and a cheery smile. He takes great pleasure in helping others and likes his chosen work, always leaving a job well-done. He has been one of the hardest working printers and among the best natured, brightening many tedious hours with his witty remarks.

JOSEPH WATCY BANACH

"Joe"

One of the "twins," "Joe" is always ready to take his brother up on one of his humorous remarks, making what has been said all the funnier. He is capable of turning out well-done jobs and enjoys his work. Interested in most sports, he makes a fine addition to any team. His temper may be quick, but he keeps it under control and is liked by all.

FLORENCE NYRA BANNING

"Peggy"

MARGUERITE BARNARD

Exponent (2, 3, Exchange Editor 4); Yearbook Committee (4).

Marguerite is that sweet blonde from Room 14 who always greets you with a smile. We don't hear much from her, but we know she shares her interest between Turners and Greenfield. Marguerite's love for a good time and her winning personality will certainly lead her to happiness.

DORIS ALICE BERRY

"Doris"

Drill Corps (2); Glee Club (2); "Campus Capers" (2).

"Doris" has been quiet in her three years at G. H. S. Although she hasn't taken an active part in school affairs, she has many friends. Her plans for the future are undecided but whatever she chooses, the Class of '40 wish her the best of luck.

ELIZABETH EVA BETSOLD

"Betty"

Commercial Club (4).

"Betty" came to Greenfield High from Smith Academy in Hatfield where she was in many clubs as well as on the varsity basketball team. For the short time she has been here, she will leave a pleasant memory to all those who have come in contact with her.

JUNE ELLA BITTERS

"Boony"

Delta Sigma Rho (2, 3, 4); Dramatic Club (2, 3, 4); Glee Club (3); Art Club (4); "Hearts of Campus" (3); "June Mad" (4).

Where there are friends you will find personality and where there is personality you will find June. She always has a witty remark for the other person, and knows how to make friends. June has proved herself capable in dramatics.

EDWARD WILLIAM BITZER

"Eddie"

Exponent (4); Cheer Leader (4); Sophomore Reception Committee (3); Year Book Committee (4); Football Dance Committee (4); "Bachelor Born" (4); "June Mad" (4); Dramatic Club (2, 3, 4); Decoration Committee, Graduation (3).

During his three years at G. H. S. "Eddie" has made many friends, and as one of our cheer leaders he has been "tops." Many a dull class has been enlivened by the clever pranks of "Eddie" and his pals. Our best wishes go with you, "Eddie."

WARREN EDWARD BLANCHARD

"Chuckie"

Intramural basketball (2, 3, 4); Basketball (1); Sophomore Reception Committee (3); Alpha Beta Pi Amateur Show (2); "Campus Capers" (3); Dramatic Club (Secretary 3); Guidance Council (2).

DUANE BLANCHARD BLISS

"Slop"

Intramural basketball (2, 3, 4); Basketball (2, Manager 4); Sophomore Dance Committee (3); Senior Play Stage Crew (4); Dramatic Club (4).

Duane is one of those boys who at times look a little cross, but really possess a fine sense of humor. His willingness to give a helping hand will bring him the success of which he is so highly deserving.

PAUL HOWARD BOURBEAU

"Double Trouble"

Dramatic Club (2, 3); Guidance Council (4); Football Dance Committee (4); Football Emblem Committee (4).

"Double Trouble" is the nickname Paul picked as his favorite moniker; why, we certainly don't know. However, we do know he makes a hit with all his friends and teachers with few exceptions. Paul certainly knows how to get out of tight spots only to be right back where he started. Paul's special technique is picking good-looking girls.

HELEN ELLEN BOYD

"Helen"

Intramural basketball (3).

Helen is one of the less active members of our class. Her friendly manner has won her many friends. She wishes to be a nurse, and we feel sure that success will be with her in this field.

RICHARD FRANKLIN BRAFF

"Dick"

"Dick" is one of those quiet chaps who always seem to burn the midnight oil. He has studied very industriously and to those who know him, is an unassuming, friendly person. His efforts will probably bring him wealth and success.

OLGA PALMA BRESCIANO

"Olga"

Glee Club (3, 4); Art Club (3, 4); "Hearts of Campus" (3); "Nautical Marietta" (4); New England and State Music Festivals (3).

This happy, dark-haired Senior has been quite active in the Glee Club. Wherever she is, there is a group around her, and we all know it is because of her charm and pep. She has never lacked any friends, and she has made a great many more in her high school career.

ELLWYN CARLTON BOGUE

"Elmer"

Intramural basketball (3, 4).

"Elmer" is one fellow the Machine Shop will miss because of his helpfulness to all. We hear that he is very much a ladies' man and has many friends among the weaker sex.

MARJORIE LOIS BOLTON

"Margie"

Pro Merito; Exponent (3); Intramural basketball (4); Tennis tournament (3); Class Secretary (4); Sophomore Reception Committee (3); Senior Play Committee (4); Football Dance Committee (4); Year Book Committee (Photograph Editor 4); "Nautical Marietta" (4); Spring Concert (4); Delta Sigma Rho (2); Alpha Beta Pi (3, Secretary 4); Dramatic Club (2, Secretary 3); Student Council (3, Secretary 4); Guidance Council (3, Secretary 4); Glee Club (4); Silver G (3, 4); Cheer Leader (4); Cap and Gown Committee (4); Commencement Usher (3).

"Margie" is that cute and popular cheer leader who finds time for many activities. However, her extra-curricular affairs have not prevented her from being an honor student. She seems to have a monopoly on club offices, that of secretary being her specialty. "Margie's" pep, ambition, and personality have made her a valuable member of the Class of '40.

STELLA ANNA BONK

"Bonkie"

Pro Merito; Commercial Club (President 3, 4); Art Club (4); Intramural basketball (2); Year Book Committee (4); Gregg Theory Certificate; Gregg Progress Pin; Filing Certificate; Gregg 60 Pin and Certificate; 40 Typewriting Pin (4).

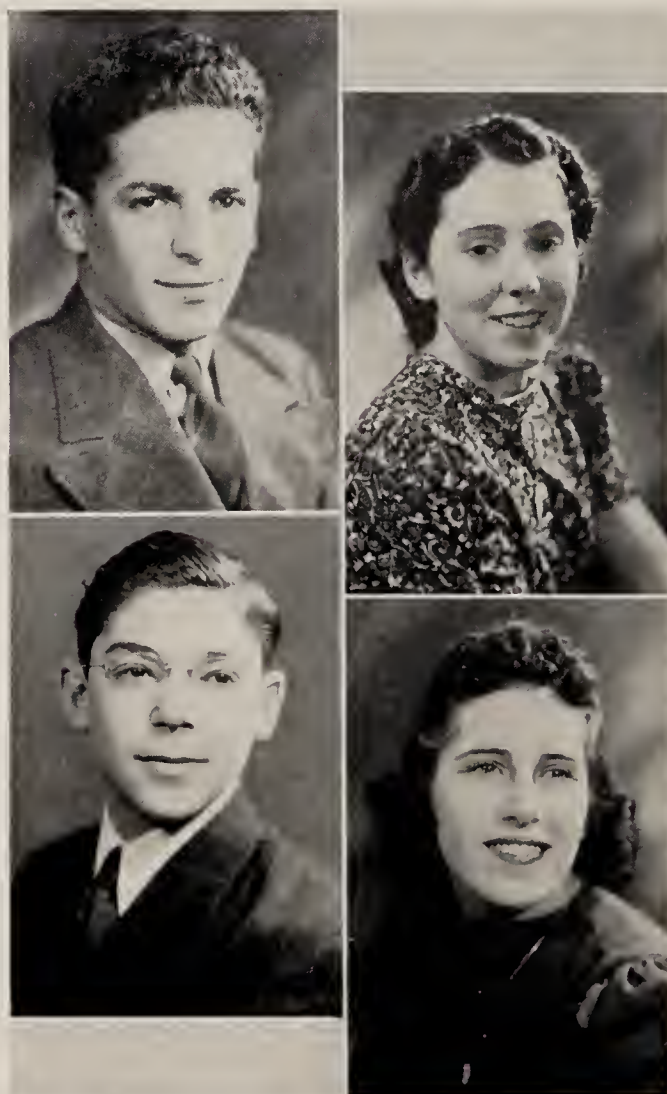

"Bonkie" is a dark-eyed lass who is always the life of the party. She has achieved much in the Commercial Course where she has a host of friends. "Bonkie" has led the Commercial Club through two years of success and may she have the best for the future in whatever she undertakes.

ELDORA RITA BOUCHER

"Rec"

Gregg Progress Pin (4); Gregg 60, 80 Certificates (4); Commercial Club (4).

Although Rita came to G. H. S. in her Senior year, she has made a place for herself in the social and scholastic activities of the school. She is alert and efficient in her studies, and very brilliant at writing poems. She is ever ready to help and, therefore, makes friends with many.

KENNETH CARSON BRIGHTMAN

"Ken"

Intramural basketball (2, 3, 4); Baseball (2, 3, 4); Hi-Y Dance Committee (3, 4); Hi-Y (3, 4); Guidance Council (4).

"Ken" has a technique of making friends which is envied by all. When he makes a friend, he has one who lasts forever. "Ken" is a genial and friendly companion liked by everyone who knows him.

RONALD OLIVER GEORGE BRISSETTE

"Bottle"

Football (2, 3, 4); Basketball (2, 3); Track (2, 3, 4); Basketball (2, 3); Dramatic Club (3).

"Bottle" is that short but active athlete who has done so much for G. H. S. on the gridiron. But don't let this lad's height fool you, for he is small but mighty, as well as bubbling over with spirit and fun. He is also a born "jitterbug," and wherever you see him, he is surrounded by his many friends.

WINIFRED DIANNA MARY BRISSETTE

"Winnie"

Glee Club (2); Alpha Beta Pi Amateur Show (4).

"Winnie" is a friendly member of the Vocational Course. She is usually seen with a group of friends and is well known and liked by many. Although she hasn't been in very many extra-curricular activities she has plenty of outside interests, mainly roller skating.

ROBERT ARNOLD BROCKLESBY

"Bob"

Pro Merito (3, President 4); Guidance Council (3, 4); Dramatic Club (2, 3, President 4); Commercial Club (2, 3); Year Book Committee (4); "Bachelor Born" (4); "June Mad" (4); Sophomore Prom Committee (3); Gregg Shorthand Progress Pin; Gregg Theory Certificate; Gregg 60, 80 Certificates; Typing Pin (4); Hi-Y (4); Decoration Committee, Graduation (3).

This young fellow, who is always busy, never lets time pass by at his expense. Music is "Bob's" main attraction, but he is very good at dramatics as well as everything he does. We hope that in years to come we shall be able to hear "Bob," his piano, and his orchestra broadcasting from some well-known New York hotel. We'll all be waiting.

GEORGE BARD BROOKS

American Legion Oratorical Contest (4); Glee Club (3, 4); Intramural basketball (3); "Hearts of the Campus" (3); "Nautical Marietta" (4).

George, with his ever ready smile and friendly personality, has many friends. He has a talent for speaking and is always ready to help with new ideas. George will reach his goal.

BASIL CARLETON BROWN

"Brownie"

Intramural basketball (2); Track Manager (2); Printers' Guild (2).

"You can't keep a good man down" is "Brownie's" theory, and no matter how many times the teachers have tried, his personality has put him across again. He works at the Lawler Theatre, but especially enjoys going to the movies on his day off.

JAMES STEPHEN BROWN

"Jimmy"

Intramural basketball (2, 3); Baseball (3, 4); Guidance Council, (2, 3); Student Council (2, 3); Hi-Y (3, Secretary 4).

"Jimmy" is one of those boys who can fit in anywhere and show himself as the gentleman he is. He is well liked and can usually be found with the gang.

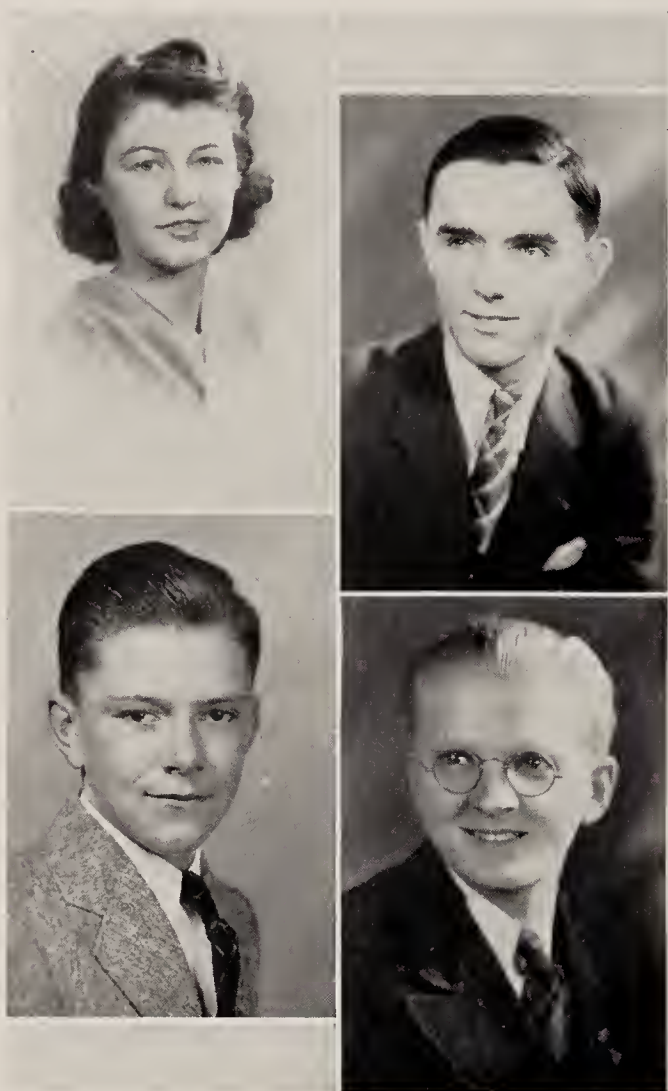

MILTON COBURN BROWN

"Dimples"

"Hearts of the Campus" (3); "Bachelor Born" (4); "June Mad" (4); "Nautical Marietta" (4); Boys' Glee Club (3, 4); Dramatic Club (4).

One glance at Milton's extra-curricular activities shows that he has often been seen on the stage of G. H. S. He seems to have kept his talent hidden until this year when he surprised most of us. He will long be remembered for his fine acting as the director in "Bachelor Born." With his dramatic and musical ability, Milton will go far.

BEVERLY ELIZABETH BRUCE

"Bev"

Intramural basketball (2, 3, 4); Class Vice President (2, 3, 4); Sophomore Dance Committee (3); Senior Play Committee (4); Year Book Committee (4); "Nautical Marietta" (4); Drill Corps (2, 3); Glee Club (4); Alpha Beta Pi (2, 3, Vice President 4); Dramatic Club (2, 3); Student Council (2, 4); Guidance Council (2, 3, 4).

"Bev" is one of our finest classmates. Because of her generous cooperation and good work, she has taken part in many extra-curricular activities. "Bev's" genial respect for everyone has made her well liked while in high school.

ROBERT PAUL BULMAN

"Bob"

Gregg Progress Pin; Baseball (2); Guidance Council (Secretary 3); Dramatic Club (4).

"Bob" is a quiet boy with a pleasing personality and a cheerful smile. No school function would seem complete without "Bob's" presence. His main hobby is his recordings, and he may be seen often at Deland's.

JOHN BUNK

"Homer"

John has been one of the stand-bys of the Cabinet Shop for three years, and with his pal "Mike" has had many a good time. Outside of school he spends most of his time at North Parish with the "gang." Whenever there has been fun, John has been in on it, but he hasn't wasted time in classes either.

WALTER HENRY BURNHAM

"Prossor"

Walter is one of our rather quiet Seniors. Although he has never participated in extra-curricular activities, we are informed that he has other outside activities. Walter, during his career at G. H. S., has devoted most of his time to his school work.

EDWARD W. BURNISKE

"Ed"

Commercial Club (3, 4).

"Ed" is the boy we can always see rushing one of the girls in Room 15. He has never participated in many school affairs, however, but has a number of outside activities. "Ed" has a captivating personality that will carry him far after G. H. S. days are past.

DOROTHY MARGARET BURNS

"Dotty"

Pro Merito; Gregg Progress Pin; Gregg Theory Certificate; Gregg 60, 80, 100, and 120 Certificates; 40, 50, and 60 Medals in type-writing; Intramural basketball (2, 3); Winter Concert (2); Glee Club (3, 4); Art Club (4).

"Dotty" is that friendly lass from Room 15, the one with all the speed. During her high school career, her winning personality and sense of humor have won many friends for her. She never fails to greet you with a cheery smile and a glad "hi." We know "Dotty" will never be lacking in friends.

ELIZABETH CLAIRE CAHILL

"Claire"

"Campus Capers" (3); "Hearts of Campus" (3); New England and State Music Festivals (2, 3); Band (2, 3); Alpha Beta Pi (4).

Who doesn't know Claire? Her pleasing smile and good humor make her a well-known figure in G. H. S. We will all miss her frequent quips and vivid blush after graduation.

RICHARD ANDREW CARSON

"Dick"

Printers' Guild (2, 3).

If you ever heard a loud laugh ringing through the Print Shop, it was probably "Dick" showing his appreciation of some humorous happening. His ability to see the funny side of life, even when the going is tough, has kept his spirits up and has helped greatly in his work.

EVELYN MARIE CASEY

"Casey"

Pro Merito; "Campus Capers" (2); "Hearts of Campus" (3); "Nautical Marietta" (4); Spring Concert (2, 3); New England and State Music Festivals (2, 3); Glee Club (2, 3, 4); A capella Choir (2, 3, 4); Dramatic Club (2, 3); Drill Corps (2); Usher, "Bachelor Born" (4); Silver G (4).

Even though Evelyn is a red-head she has a very cheery disposition. Her extra-curricular activities have not interfered with her high scholastic standing.

WINIFRED HELEN CASH

"Winnie"

Did you hear a giggle or a snicker? If you did you will recognize "Winnie." Full of fun and always ready to have a good time, she's made many friends during her years in high school.

EDWARD BLAIR CASWELL

"Beaver"

When you hear a loud noise coming from the center of a discussion group among the General Metal Shop boys, you may be sure you've found "Beaver." He's a good sport and enjoys being among his friends, who respect his opinions.

AGNES MARGARET CHULA

"Aggie"

Gregg Progress Pin.

"Aggie" is one of the few quiet Senior girls of G. H. S. Although she has not done much for extra-curricular work, she has made many friends both in and out of school. She may almost always be seen with Helen Rogalski.

HERBERT WESLEY CLARK

"Herbie"

Football (3, 4); Hi-Y (3, 4); Student Council (4); Guidance Council (President 4).

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

TO Parents, Faculty, and Guests:

The Class of 1940 has bestowed upon me the honor of welcoming you one and all to our Class Day exercises.

It is also my privilege to introduce to you certain members of the Class of '40 who have been chosen on a basis of scholarship and leadership to address you.

To My Classmates:

Our years together in G. H. S. are nearing their termination, and we wonder where they have gone. On looking back, we realize that we have spent them in earnest endeavor for success as well as in the pleasures experienced in the social and athletic phases of our education. At this time, I should like to thank you for the honor of being elected to represent you. I have found pleasure in these duties as well as in my regular work and athletic interests, and I hope that I have carried them out to your satisfaction.

DONALD MARSHALL KNAPP

The Constitution and The American Ideal

“ALL persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside.” This is the definition of a citizen of the United States as found in Amendment Fourteen of the Constitution. This definition means not only that a citizen belongs to the United States and holds certain civil and political rights but also that he has in his possession the greatest American tradition — the right of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. This ideal was first established by the framers of the Declaration of Independence, who under King George’s tyranny fully realized the value and the necessity of these rights.

I shall strive to show how the Constitution is related to this ideal.

First of all, the right of life. This is the most cherished possession that man has. The majority of persons have a natural fear of losing their lives and will do almost anything to retain them. Let us use as an example a refugee from one of the countries in Europe. He is looking for a new home. It is logical to assume that one whose life is constantly threatened by war, revolution, and mob violence would seek the place where the safety of his life would be guaranteed. Therefore our refugee comes to the United States because his guarantee is the Constitution. Any individual’s life is protected to the utmost by that great written document.

Let us assume that our refugee has become a United States citizen. Becoming curious about the Constitution, he acquires a copy of it and learns many interesting facts. He finds in Article One, Section Eight, that Congress is the sole part of the government that has the power to declare war. Since the United States is a representative democracy, war cannot be declared unless the people desire it. If there is no war, there is no mass slaying. Consequently, the life of our citizen is more secure.

For the defense of the country the Constitution grants Congress the power to raise a Navy and an Army. The latter, however, is restrained from gaining power and threatening the nation, since appropriations are granted for only two years at a time. Our citizen is protected to the maximum against a revolution, since no movement of this type can be successful without the army behind it.

Also, our citizen is protected by a system of Federal Courts. At the head is the Supreme Court. This body sees that no harmful laws are enacted. If there is a minimum of bad laws, there is a minimum of riots and other forms of mob violence.

Thus the new citizen finds that his life is very secure because of these and other written guarantees in our Constitution.

Further, let us consider the right of liberty. This has always been a goal men have struggled to attain. To be persecuted because of one’s religion; to be forbidden to express one’s opinions; and to be forbidden to meet with one’s fellow beings is merely a mechanical existence; it is not living. To a person who has lived under such conditions life in America seems like paradise. This is due to the Constitution. The very first amendment says that the people have freedom of Religion, Speech, Press, and Assembly. Our new citizen quickly and gratefully takes advantage of these rights. He joyfully finds that he may worship wherever and however he pleases; that he may say just what he thinks without the threat of a prison sentence hanging over him; that he may read the actual truth of world events and not some selfish dictator’s translation; that he may assemble with others to decide and do what they think best. Liberty! No man can live long without it until he becomes a living machine, a slave, acting under another’s will. The Constitution guarantees liberty to those who are under the jurisdiction of the United States.

Perhaps the longest chase that man has ever known is the pursuit of happiness. It started ages before history began and is still going on. The United States is the nation that aids its people most in capturing this elusive quest. The Constitution is the element that supplies this help. Article One, Section Eight, says that Congress has the power to provide for the General Welfare of the United States.

Let me illustrate what has been done with this power. Great electricity-producing dams have been built; millions of lives have been saved from dreaded diseases by water-purifying and sewage disposal plants; and irrigation and flood-control projects have been constructed.

Furthermore, the working conditions in the United States are the best in the world. No one has surpassed our public school system. The saying, "Every man's house is his castle," can be attributed to Amendments Three, Four, and Five. Relative to protecting the privacy of the people, these amendments state that soldiers cannot be quartered in private homes; people and their property cannot be searched without a warrant; and all private property is to be respected.

Now, with these rights and privileges, among many others, there is little reason to believe that the people of the United States should not have made considerable progress toward their object — happiness.

Thus, a citizen must always remember and respect the Constitution, for it is the guarantee of his life, liberty, and happiness, and it is the backbone of the United States government. Without it, the country which today is ours could never have existed! As it is, however, the United States of America — free, strong, and unafraid — should go on living with its great ideal, setting a glorious example to the rest of the world.

GEORGE BARD BROOKS

Household Arts Department of the Greenfield Vocational School

ONE of the most practical courses given in our high school is the Household Arts course. Its chief objective is to develop ability to be worthy working members of the family. Our course consists of training in Home Economics and in academic work.

In our Household Arts course our academic work consists of English, Social Studies, Science, Consumer Education, and Store Service.

Our objectives in English have been to gain command of expression which will help us in the most practical way, in business and social life. To this end we have practice in speaking before our class, and drill in corrective English. The main aim in our written English has been to improve in letter writing, since most of our writing in later life will be confined to that phase.

In Social Studies, we first have a course in good manners and desirable personality traits. Next we study United States History, and Economics, considering Economics mainly from the standpoint of earning a living and managing an income.

In Science, our work is related to our Household Arts course. We study Bacteriology in relation to food preservation and health. Food values and requirements of the human system are learned. We have practice in simple repairs requiring a knowledge of systems of plumbing, heating, and water supply.

In Consumer Education, we learn how to judge values, and choose wisely, so as to get the most for our money in buying.

Since many of our group find employment in retail selling, we have a course in Store Service which gives us training in the technique of selling, and the necessary drill in English and Mathematics.

HOME ECONOMICS

Because home making is one of the largest occupations in the country we are being trained for a field that is very important in scope. Our course is planned so that we have both clothing and food study throughout the year. This helps in correlation, and gives a more homelike experience.

In our foods work, we not only prepare and serve the food, but also learn the nutrition of foods and balancing of the food budget.

Our first lessons are the cooking of meats, vegetables, fish, salads, and desserts, and then we serve complete meals to which we invite teachers, parents, and classmates. We learn to do our own planning of menus, estimating costs, and buying supplies.

Our clothing work consists of garment construction, selection, and proper care of clothing. We make garments such as smocks, underwear, street and sport clothes, evening dresses, children's clothes and household articles. We also do a great deal of renovation of garments that have been discarded, but still have a great deal of value when remodeled.

Related to our course in Home Economics, we have Laundry and Home Care, and Art Work in which we study Interior Decoration and Costume Designing. To round out our training as homemakers, we are taught Home Hygiene, Child Care, and Family Relationships. In these courses, we discuss and try to settle many problems that must be solved in order to have a successful and happy life.

Our equipment in both foods and clothing laboratories is excellent and complete, and is open at all times to those who wish to see the work we do. This work is of value not only to the individual, but also to the community, for the ideals of living are furthered by homemakers who are trained in the knowledge and skills necessary in the management of a healthy, happy home.

BARBARA THELMA COLBY

Music Plays a Part

BY means of crudely or skillfully made instruments or his own voice, man has always had and known music for comfort, pleasure, and necessity. Produce melody, harmony and rhythm, and you have music.

The beginnings of music are to be found in nature herself. The howling of the winds, the humming of insects, the cries of animals, the songs of birds must all be considered as elemental music, in as much as they contain the two fundamental elements thereof: rhythm and tone.

For untold ages music appealed mostly to people's emotions. A mother sang to her child to comfort him and lull him to sleep. A lover sang to his lady to show his love for her. Natives of a primitive tribe beat a tom-tom to stir themselves into spiritual emotion. At the present time, music appeals both to our minds and to our emotions.

Music has wonderful powers of consoling man. It is said that this pleasure that he derives from the art is due to five causes: the elementary power of tone, form, association, symbolization, and sympathetic agitation.

Man listens to a piece of music which tells a story about or around some object or experience in life. If that music has the right tone, if it gives the right expression, if it creates within him an understanding, an image or knowledge of this object, then he truly appreciates the music language.

Through this interpretation of the music language, people receive an understanding about things they never have seen or heard. Ideas are changed and developed by music's useful messages. Music helps people to get away from their everyday thoughts and habits and draws them from the real life to the life of pleasant unreality. In this way they learn to appreciate true music.

All composers when writing music have a reason for doing so. Some have ideas they wish to give to the world, some imitate the sounds of nature, some express their views of this present-day life, and some interpret the simple and wholesome things in life for others to enjoy. Instead of writing these facts down to be read from books, they write them down to be transformed into sound, where expression and interpretation may be given and felt more fully.

Music from all the ages, if put in consecutive order, would tell the history of this world. In the various forms that music takes, such as orchestra, song, dance, piano, and opera, are found the expression and the atmosphere of the period in which it was written.

During the medieval days the music was largely composed of songs made up by traveling troubadours telling the adventures of fighting knights. Later on, the songs were filled with the romance of life and nature. Then came royal dances of many steps which varied in form according to the custom and dress of the periods.

In this progress of the races, civilizations rose and fell. Music signifying sadness, gladness, victory, and remorse was written and is still being written. This music tells of struggles once endured and pleasures once enjoyed. By its means man can contrast the life of yesterday with that of today. In this way music is and will be a record of history.

Today there are three distinct musical paths: vocal forms, solo instrumental forms, and orchestral music. Most people appreciate music, but they understand it differently. One person may listen to nothing but operas, another may want piano, and another may prefer orchestral music. No matter which one they desire, as long as they derive a pleasurable understanding from it they will benefit in knowledge, interpretation, and appreciation equally. This is because each of these paths of music runs in a parallel line with the others, and therefore, furnishes three ways in which to enjoy one art.

There are people who neither play an instrument nor sing, but every one of them has benefited by music. Motion pictures, radio studios, churches, clubs, etc., all use music to help in creating the expression and feeling needed. In one of these many activities man must take part to keep his place in life. Life would be dull and toneless, and man would not receive of life its full value if music did not play its part.

ROBERT ARNOLD BROCKLESBY

Liberty and Union

LIBERTY and union are probably two of the most common words in the American vocabulary, but the fact that they are so common detracts from their true meaning. We in the United States (I shall call us Americans for want of a better word), are so busy rushing here and there that we do not stop to realize what these two words mean, what part they play in our lives. They are truly American. Nowhere else in the world, not even in the democracies of France, England, or South America, do these two words have such importance. They are the foundation of our democracy.

When the Constitutional Convention met in 1787, the members had no intention of framing a Constitution. Their aim was merely to revise the Articles of Confederation, but instead that body of men formed a new Constitution. This document created union by providing for a strong central government, which would be superior to the state governments. However, the people were not satisfied until the Bill of Rights was added. This Bill comprises the first ten amendments and insures personal liberty. The ratification of the Constitution was an important turning point in our history as it provided for American liberty and union.

Through the century and a half which have passed, the Constitution of the United States has never ceased to function. It has not been overthrown by persons ambitious for power as has been the case in several European countries, for example, Spain. Through it our democratic form of government has been made secure. The result has been a rich, strong, united country inhabited by a peace-loving people who have the highest standard of living in the world.

Life in America is often contrasted to that in Europe in order to bring Americans to a realization of the ideal conditions in which they live. There are thousands of stories of life in a European country. You all know a few, and perhaps some of you have had the actual experience. Most of you know of the lack of opportunities which exists for the average man in Europe. If a man is a farmer, his son must follow that same trade. He has no chance to get ahead, because he can't get an education or the necessary money. There, class distinctions are very sharp, and everything tends to hold a man in his own class. Thus his liberty is at stake. On the other hand, this is not so in America. The only requirement for advancement is willingness to work and learn. An immigrant has as good a chance to become a millionaire as a American-born man has.

There is only a limited freedom in Europe. A man can not even speak his mind on subjects of national importance, those in which everyone should have a voice. He must sit back quietly, and after the leaders have reached a decision he must accept it and abide by it. In America the people have the right to vote and can elect leaders who will do their bidding.

I suppose that a form of union exists in the various countries over there, but I can not honestly honor it by calling it such. It really is not a union because the masses of the people had nothing to do with its formation; they were simply forced by strong political leaders to live under one government. The so-called unions which exist were not formed to aid the people, as was ours, but rather to strengthen the ambitious.

Thus, it is only natural that some of the oppressed people should turn their eyes from the darkness and misery of their homes to the brightness and promise of America. They came to this country by the thousands and left behind them poverty, ignorance, tyranny, and what practically amounted to slavery. They faced the future with courage and the conviction that here in this, their promised land, they would have an opportunity to build new lives and fortunes.

There are many, many stories of courageous immigrants who have found happiness and success here. I should like to tell you one that has recently been brought to my attention and one in which I am interested.

The man of whom I am going to tell you was a professor in a European university. He was very intelligent and was a marvelous teacher. Unfortunately, he did not approve of the way in which his country was being managed, and he intimated this fact to a friend. From then on he lived in fear of being sent to concentration camp. The government interfered with his work at the University and told him what he could and could not teach. Conditions grew worse daily. Finally, this man, leaving all his possessions behind him, escaped to a friendly sea port in a neighboring country. There he embarked for America.

Almost instantly upon his arrival in America he was presented with a professorship in one of our better-known colleges. Our professor accepted this offer and started a new life. Here he had no fear of concentration camps or government interference. He enjoyed all the liberties which belong to people living in this country. As his salary was considerable, he was able to save a part of it, and now he owns his own home and takes trips throughout our country. He is very happy and thanks God daily for such a country.

I think that this story and its many companion ones prove a very important point with respect to the feeling which immigrants have for this country. Because they have lived in such terrible conditions, conditions in which human beings received no consideration and were only tools of a higher power, these unfortunate people appreciate our country with its union, freedom, and chance for advancement much more than an American-born person does. They can realize how wonderful, how almost unbelievable, it is that people of so many different races can live together in peace. Here they find all the things they wanted: education, the right to vote, decent living conditions, amusements, an opportunity to make something of themselves, and a chance to live and breathe and call their souls their own.

The majority of us here cannot understand how much these things mean because we have never been without them. That is the reason why I claim that you and I can say liberty and union, and they will just be two every-day words to us. On the other hand to a man or woman who has lived in the chaos abroad these two words mean America and all the wonderful things to be found here. True liberty and union must always go together, and years ago Daniel Webster knew that this was so when he said, "Liberty and union, now and forever, one and inseparable."

May these words be the rule by which we will pattern our every thought and deed that America may ever remain a shrine of peace and justice!

Printing, Its First Five Hundred Years

THIS year we are commemorating the 500th anniversary of the invention of printing. Though printing was practiced since the 9th century in China, it remained for Gutenberg to reveal that movable type, impractical in the Chinese language with its thousands of characters, was perfect for the Western alphabets, whose letters were not so numerous as the Chinese. It was in 1440 that Gutenberg began his experimenting with movable type. A ten years' work culminated in the printing of the Bible, the first important work to be printed and the most in demand, remaining a "best-seller" even to this day.

The work was costly and laborious, but compared to the handcopying which the monks had to do, which made their manuscripts so valuable that they had to be chained in monastery libraries with only a small circle to read them, its speed was spectacular.

Just as spectacular was the young art's influence. Growing rapidly it attracted many artists who were enhanced by the ever-widening horizon which it disclosed. They designed new type faces for beauty as well as readability; clearly printing's artistic values were not to be left languishing while the ideas it was distributing received all the attention.

The thoughts were now being expressed in a medium with which it was becoming possible to reach all classes of people. New ideas of government and religion spread rapidly; the Reformation, one of the many changes which printing speeded up, came during the first century of the trade's existence.

America contributed greatly in the development of the next milestone in the progress of printing, the mechanical press. Treadwell, a New England machinist adopted the lever principle for the job-press. Gordon, another American, developed it. By the end of the 19th century the job, cylinder, and rotary presses were all in use. Man-power had been replaced with steam-power, to be followed by electricity. These large presses powered with electricity made possible the present-day newspapers.

These daily newspapers became the exponents of the new conceptions of the day; editors, the leaders of new causes. They could wield the powerful weapons of publicity and criticism without fear because the trial of Zeanger of New York in colonial times established a free press. This ideal was later incorporated in the Constitution. This was the day of Garrison and Lundy, who used their newspapers during the Civil War period to further their humanitarian cause, abolition. This was the day of the editor-printer Horace Greeley and his "Go West, young man, go West!" This was the day when any young man wanting to make a name for himself and desiring a well-rounded education went into printing. There he came in contact with every idea of any great influence. His was a well-informed view on any topic.

New developments in newspaper production included machine type-setting and pictures. Mergenthaler in 1884 had perfected the linotype machine making it possible to set the type for a whole newspaper in two or three hours. The addition of pictures completed the whole. While block-prints had been used for centuries — Gutenberg first printed with them until he conceived the idea of breaking them up into movable blocks using the same designs over again but arranged differently — it was not possible to gain exact likenesses with them. Zinc line-cuts were used extensively in newspaper work, but they too could not reproduce realistically. However, a new process, photo-engraving came into its own in the latter part of the 19th century. With it, it was possible to reproduce anything in minute details. The process involves the use of photography and chemistry.

In the beginning artists had "brought up" the young trade. Now inventors and ingenious scientists proffered their aid in developing all phases and bringing forth revolutionary methods of printing. In the 20th century the combination of art, science, and invention, all working together in printing, began to view the magnificent fruit of their labor. Color printing came in to stay. Aiming at beauty and realism, as well as cheapness and speed, offset and lithographic methods of printing were introduced and perfected. Attention was given to the faults of the shop; its dangers were gradually eliminated. Machines were fitted with guards and protectors. Modern methods of ventilation were introduced. Printers no longer worked with no thought for their own health and well-being.

To understand the people who use their skill and power to produce influential ideas, we must look to the organization which has kept them together for so long, their famous union. During the medieval period all books were kept and reproduced in monasteries. After the invention of printing it became a Guild trade — the guild being the fore-runner of the present day union and very much like it with its system of dividing printers into classes; the master-printer, journeyman, and apprentice, the first being highly skilled, the second becoming so, and the third, learning the trade. Printers have always been fighting for better wages, working conditions, and other benefits, using their most powerful weapon, the strike. In England around 1840, a group of printers went on strike because steam-power was brought into a shop, throwing large numbers of men out of work. The strike was settled amicably because the workers were absorbed into other parts of the plant. The first printers' strike in America was in 1776, for higher wages. This was not a union strike however; the workers in a shop in Philadelphia became dissatisfied with starvation wages and agreed among themselves to strike. Rather like a modern newspaper reads the history of the Printers' Union.

Ranking sixth in financial importance in industry in the United States, and among the first fifteen employing the most people, printing would come nearer still to the top in a scale of social necessities. It is hard to realize what we would do without the myriad little things printing produces, things that individually seem unimportant but collectively become all important; things which assume prominence only when missed. The modern print-shop is a far cry from that of 500 years ago. Time and labor-saving machines have relieved greatly the tediousness and difficulties of the printer's work.

The industry's influence during its existence has been incalculable even as its future influence is immeasurable. Adaptable, practical and universal, it can truly be said to be the greatest invention, one of the most perfect expressions of man's ingenuity, since the first wheel was set rolling thousands of years ago.

WILLIAM JOSEPH JACOBS

Class History

TIME: From now on.

PLACE: On a desolate, small peninsula at the corner of a small piece of land hidden away in an obscure part of the world called Federal and Sanderson Strait.

CHARACTERS: Mr. and Mrs. Who's Yahooodi.

SCENE: A few quivering cocoanut trees and two dazed persons who haven't recovered from their senior banquet and nightlife of 40 years ago.

ACTION: 40 years of constant mumbling and trying to find out who nicknamed them "Who's Yahooodi?"

Mrs. Yahooodi: Hey, there, don't you remember what happened after Mr. Smith gave you that white paper and you ran because you thought it was another graduation bill?

Mr. Yahooodi: Gosh, I don't, Yahoo. Don't you think we'd better start reproducing the scene from the beginning of that first day when we entered G. H. S. as Sophomores? That might help us a lot to solve our problem. Here comes a worm. Ask him for some water.

Mrs.: (Asks the poor insignificant little worm.) He said to ask Mr. Watt.

Mr.: Wait! It is all coming back. As I remember, we entered as future alumni of '40 on one hot blistering day in the fall.

Mrs.: I can remember now. After a few days of rushing into wrong rooms, we became acquainted with the various teachers in their four-walled rooms.

Mr.: Class politics was the first step in this school of democracy. The Republicans, (and they are still trying) lost out, and "Joe" Maleno held the reins as president on the Democratic ticket to give us a "New Deal." "Bev" Bruce and Gordon Weir were Vice Presidents, Eleanor Robichaud, Secretary, and Jean Powers, Treasurer.

Mrs.: The sympathetic Juniors made us feel at home that next month of October by giving us the Sophomore Dance. We felt right at home and golly! it was fun dancing even though we were practically ignored by the Seniors, but time marched on. Barbara Colby gave our class the honor of having a fine singing voice and was placed among the winners of the Alpha Beta Pi Amateur Show.

Mr.: How can we forget "Bottle" Brissette, the slippery little Sophomore ball carrier, who, although a J. V., won the hearts of the whole community? He did a splendid job.

Mrs.: Wasn't he the one who started the popularity of a certain song about then?

Mr.: Yes, every time we wanted a touchdown, the stands sang "Roll out the Barrel." "Joe" Maleno was our star basketball player, and Angelo Moschen was the king of the diamond for our class.

Mrs.: As restful summer passed by, we entered as wiser Juniors. Some became more conscious of their duties and thought more seriously about college. Amiable Elsie Daysh was picked for the presidency, and a successful year was in store for all. "Bev" Bruce and "Ollie" Marion were chosen as Vice Presidents, "Joe" Maleno as Secretary, and Eleanor Daignault was to take care of the class finances. Boys and girls, girls and boys! We had finally acquired a little confidence, and there was no stopping us till graduation.

Mr.: Oh, my head! Say, that did give us a headache. What a gang of little Sophomores came, but we felt sorry for them seeing that once we said, "Hello," to the teachers, but now we say, "Hi"! We initiated the "yearlings" into our decorated gym and gave them the time of their lives with the Sophomore Reception — also a friendly bit of advice to leave the decorations alone — and for once they did because they were too short.

Mrs.: More talent is uncovered every year even in athletics. "Herb" Clark, "Bottle" Brissette, "Butch" Szymakowski, and "Jimmy" Turnbull battled away for us in the varsity and nearly knocked Turners off its high horse — even though it took another year, they did it.

Mr.: That's right; they did. Gosh, how did we become Yahoodis anyway?

Mrs.: I don't know, but let's keep going, and we may hit a clew yet.

Mr.: Our final year was naturally our most important. How dignified we felt as Seniors. Donald Knapp was given the honor of being President and "Bev" Bruce and "Joe" Maleno were Vice Presidents. "Bev" managed to hold the same office for three years.

Mrs.: Marjorie Bolton was our Secretary and Ruth Harris, our Treasurer. The fair opened our busy year. Edson Crafts carried away most of the athletic awards. Our cheer-leaders were peppy that year. I can see them now: Virginia Allen, Captain; Eleanor Robichaud, Marjorie Bolton, Gwendolyn Helbig, Louise Gaudry, and Edward Bitzer. They did a fine job at cheering, but we won't mention who carried away the cup.

Mr.: Next came the Senior Play, "Bachelor Born." Remember "Bob" Brocklesby, Janice Hodgen, Janice Moody, Eleanor Robichaud, Elvira Graham, Milton Brown, and good-looking "Eddie" Ethier? It was a gala night and the play went off very well.

Mrs.: We won the Turners game, thanks to our football stars. It was a fine piece of cooperation on everyone's part. "Butch" Szymakowski and "Dick" McGahan were co-captains. Remember how slick the Drill Corps looked with Jean Powers as the snappy assistant drum major?

Mr.: Along with the snow in January came mid-years. What a headache they were!

Mrs.: Alpha Beta Pi, under the leadership of Virginia Allen, and Delta Sigma Rho, with Barbara Andrews as President, gave their annual formal dances which proved to be the social highlights of the year with styles right from "Mademoiselle." (Of course, the boys always looked nice.)

Mr.: Later, the musical organizations gave their annual show, "Nautical Marietta," and in April they gave their Spring Concert in order to raise funds for festivals. George Brooks proved to be our orator with Rose Baruzzi right after him. "The Exponent" made great progress with Emil Slowinski as Editor-in-chief. We had some very good journalists in our class.

Mrs.: Before we knew it June was upon us. Came graduation with the Senior Banquet, Commencement Dance sponsored by the Hi-Y of which "Joe" Maleno was President, and then — here we are.

Mr.: Say, Who is ya hoodi?

Mrs.: I guess it must be the class of nineteen footy.

JOSEPH ANTHONY MALENO, JR.

Class Prophecy

SCENE: Fortyville, Massachusetts (a place Charlie Chan hasn't visited yet).

TIME: In the merry month of May, 1966.

CHARACTERS: Mr. I. R. Happy, Miss O. U. Kidd.

PROLOGUE: Miss O. U. Kidd and Mr. I. R. Happy became stranded in the town of Fortyville. The population is made up entirely of the Class of '40 and their descendants. At present they are discussing the events they have seen and experienced.

Miss O. U.: Isn't that date bureau that Emily Gashnig and Louise Gaudry have on Bresciano Street just fine? They have in their employ such "killers" as "Herb" Clark, "Bob" Bernstein, "Ray" Drew, and Donald (friend of all skirts) Barton.

Mr. I. R.: And how! They also have some pretty nice girls such as Helen Finn, "Chris" Allen, Mary Masterson, and Eileen Holmes.

Miss O. U.: Last night I saw Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bourbeau. She's the former "Marge" Bolton. Paul always said, "A Bourbeau selection is the height of perfection." They were swinging it out at "Laughing John's Chop House," run by John Harris.

Mr. I. R.: Oh, yes, that's where Elsie Daysh and "Phil" Woodlock are singing, and "Eddie" Ethier and his band are blasting it off.

Miss O. U.: Who plays in that band?

Mr. I. R.: Oh! there's Robert (never had a lesson in his life, and he sounds it) Wilkins at the trombone, Harold Shattuck at the washboard, and Clayton "African Joe" LaCount at the drums. Good old Henry "Feet" Piontek keeps time for them.

Miss O. U.: Remember "Buddy" Powers?

Mr. I. R.: Who can forget him?

Miss O. U.: Well, he's the doorman there, and Virginia Messenger is the hat-check girl. Also, strutting around as cigarette girls were Arlene Couture, Martha De Nofrio, Sophie Machaiek, Blanche Machaiek, and Shirley Johnston.

Mr. I. R.: Have you heard? All of the gowns for "Joe Miller's Rooty-Toot Theatre" were designed by Eleanor Robichaud and "Bev" Bruce. They own the "Severe Styles Shoppe," you know.

Miss O. U.: Yes, and wasn't the scenery swell? It was designed by Edson (call me Tarzan) Crafts. And Roy Peterson did exceptionally well with the lighting effects.

Mr. I. R.: Say, isn't Margaret Farr the General Manager there?

Miss O. U.: Yes, and it's there that "Dot" Greene has her girl ushers.

Mr. I. R.: Uh—uh—Jewel Fernandez, Shirley Flurie, Harriett Evans, Shirley Schouler, Ethel Phelps, Elaine Siano, Viola Wood, and Laura Prasol.

Miss O. U.: Milton Brown is the backer of the show; he's president of the local bank.

Mr. I. R.: He has some fine men working in his bank; every man can handle nitro-glycerin like an expert.

Miss O. U.: Yes, I noticed "Fingers" Blanchard, "Sing-Sing" Knapp, "Dead-eye" "Al" Grayeline, and "Chisel" McGuane.

Mr. I. R.: Say — where were all those kids going this morning? Officer "Joe" Graveline said they were the families of Bliss, Hatch, Matthews, and Henry Krejmas. I was nearly trampled on.

Miss O. U.: Oh, they — they were going to the dance recital given by members of Jean Powers and Mary Fotopulos' Dancing School. Prudy Adams plays the piano for them. Guess whom I met up there. "Dick" McGahan and "Butch" Szymakowski. They were being taught the ballet. "Dick" is the principal of the new high school, and "Butch" has charge of the class, "How to Make Love with the Guitar."

Mr. I. R.: Is that so?

Miss O. U.: Yep.

Mr. I. R.: Funny — I never saw them around, although I did see some of the office help. There was Rita Frappier, Helen Rogalski, Helen Curtis, and Opal Gray.

Miss O. U.: Natalie Gunn teaches algebra; Viola Ruther, Latin and French; Evelyn Casey instructs history classes; and Virginia Allen teaches gym for girls, while "Joe" Maleno has his Chemistry classes on edge with experiments of unknown results.

Mr. I. R.: Isn't Ronald Brissette head of the sports for boys?

Miss O. U.: Yes, and with his assistant, John Maloney, he's turning out some very good teams, but, if it weren't for the Daley twins and the "Red" Bartak triplets, many games would have been lost.

Mr. I. R.: Say, Miss Kidd, who is the head of the art department? That really should have a good instructor.

Miss O. U.: You're right Mr. Happy, and Laura Kalinowski fills the bill, but say — were you over at the dedication of the Gordon Joslyn Air Field last Sunday?

Mr. I. R.: Yes, I was there. Did you see who was sporting flying licenses over there?

Miss O. U.: No — who?

Mr. I. R.: Well, there's Richard Braff, William Fiske, Wallace (Sleepy Hollow) Jones, and Anthony Krejmas; they're known as "The Four Foolish Flying Fortyites."

Miss O. U.: I stopped for lunch at "Dot" Burns and Mildred Garner's "Soggy Sandwich Bar" and haven't got over it yet.

Mr. I. R.: Oh, yes — I dropped in there, too. Lucille Aselin and "Win" Cash are in charge of hash-slinging, while Alice Felix and Mary Fuchs are in charge of egg-dropping. Elvira Graham washes the crockery, and John Waitkus is on the receiving end ready to dry them.

Miss O. U.: Luckily we could share the Apple & Clough Classy Cab Company car to get back to town, but with "Bob" Guillow at the controls it's a wonder we're here at all.

Mr. I. R.: Yup — that's one ride I'll always remember.

Miss O. U.: Did you see the way Marjorie Le Baron and Richard Lyna jumped when we came breezing down Putnam Boulevard?

Mr. I. R.: Yes, and Officer Brocklesby wheeled up beside us on his scooter and told us to slow down.

Miss O. U.: Remember, we didn't know why until we sighted a huge fire. I figured it was either

"Firebug" Frank, or the mad scientist, "Jimmy" Brown.

Mr. I. R.: We met Police Chief Ralph Archer, who told us that the fire was in the "Roy McGuire Rattle Factory" and was started by Wilder Weeks so the "Slowinski Sun Sentinel" could chalk up their first up-to-the-minute news item.

Miss O. U.: Yes — they usually had to wait for "Sleepy" Burniske to wake up and find out about it, and by that time it was past history.

Mr. I. R.: There was near tragedy when the reservoir went dry. The reason was that "Bill" Thayer's family had sent their supper dishes over there the night before. This was overcome when "Clayt" Cromack brought on some of his milk that Inspector Charles Merrill found to be half water, and the fire was quenched within fifteen minutes.

Miss O. U.: After that we went back to the "Andrews' Air-Conditioned Apartment House" where we saw "Doug" Bassett trying to sell "Ed" Bitzer and "Bob" Bulman a set of Doris Berry's Beautiful Bloom Seed Catalogs. He met with no success. So he ran down Simser Street to try and convince "Betty" Betsold and Stella Bonk that this was just what they needed if they wanted to raise hale and hearty children.

Mr. I. R.: Do you recall that thing we saw up in the sky?

Miss O. U.: Yup — Richard Vielmetti's blimp. He was advertising Roger Ormsby's clothing store.

Mr. I. R.: Why does he have all girl clerks? I noticed Irene Sullivan, Mary Russo, Helen Parley, and Sophie Nowak.

Miss O. U.: I hear that Manager Paul Terranova, thinks they make a swell decoy to attract customers.

Mr. I. R.: They do, but even if you do go in you can't get waited on, because they're all reading "Gwen" Helbig and Christine O'Connell's new funny book, "We're All Right; It's the World That's Wrong."

Miss O. U.: Yep — either reading or having a "taffy-pull" as to where they are going to spend their vacation.

Mr. I. R.: Yesterday when I went in there they decided on Janice Hodgen's Happy Health Haven, which is about five miles from town.

Miss O. U. I hear that she has Russell Kimball as a caretaker, Mildred Harris as the chief masseuse, Dorothy Schneider as the hair dresser and "Dolly" Gallotto in charge of Turkish baths.

Mr. I. R.: Isn't Frederick Maher's Apple Orchard near by?

Miss O. U.: Yes, about two miles down Parody Highway.

Mr. I. R.: And Angelo Moschen runs his hot-dog stand on that highway also.

Miss O. U.: Did you know he's the exclusive dealer of Trudeau's Tasty Tonic and Ruggeri's Ravishing Relish?

Mr. I. R.: No — not really.

Miss O. U.: Sure!

Mr. I. R.: Have you noticed that unique sign outside the Murphy Insurance Company?

Miss O. U.: Yes, who invented that Scotch plaid neon sign?

Mr. I. R.: Oh, Walter Burnham and "Russ" Serrell got mad one day and threw all their electric fixtures into a pan of left overs, added a little Listerine Tooth Paste, some cream of tartar, turned on the gas, and eventually they had their invention. Pretty smart, eh what?

Miss O. U.: Did you hear about those "guys" up on the Howes-Colby Road?

Mr. I. R.: No — what happened?

Miss O. U.: Well, it's like this. Claire Cahill's family began to complain to Officers John Bunk and "Bill" Jacobs about strange odors. They in turn called in those demon inspectors, the Banach twins. They hauled out their "Dunn Devilmobile" and tore up to Gymrek Mountain and proceeded on foot through the "Collings' Tree Nursery." Finally they came upon a still operated by Basil Brown, Richard Carson, Edward Caswell, and "Mike" Cromack. "Charlie" White, "Joe" Martin, and William Kaskievich were shot down by Officer Sweet when they tried to escape with six jugs.

Mr. I. R.: Oh, yes, I saw the Wheeler Hearse clanging down Stone Street, and, when they stopped, Sally Zywna, Charlotte Snow, Margaret Pierce, and Mabel Jackman left their children and came over to watch the unloading.

Miss O. U.: The bodies were no sooner inside, than the "Kuchieski-Kaczinski Casket Company Incorporated" pulled into the yard followed by the "Tetreault Flower Shoppe" truck. This was driven by "Tim" Steinmacher, and as his helpers he had Ellwyn Bogue and "Herb" Babineau.

Mr. I. R.: Yep — the funeral was the largest affair this town ever had, but, when the "Brooks' 2½ Ring Circus" came down Flynn Street, everyone left the church and went to the "Eriksen Fairgrounds."

Miss O. U.: Yes, there we saw ticket takers, Florence Banning and June Bitters. Myles Covey was the balloon man, and "Bill" Grogan was the peanut vendor.

Mr. I. R.: And "Louie" Wagner was the strong man; John Schwartz, the fire-eater. Florence Rose attracted a crowd by charming snakes, and "Ray" LaPalme and Cyrus Liese were slapping each other down in the wrestling ring.

Miss O. U.: Remember the fun we had on "Barnard's Merry-go-Round," "Tuttle's Penny Arcade," "Delano's Ferris Wheel," and "Marcoux's Snap-the-Whip"? Then after getting a couple of "Baruzzi's Candied Apples" and a bag of "Morey's Pop-corn" we proceeded to the Big Top.

Mr. I. R.: Yah — and "Will" Rice looked pretty good feeding the animals. I noticed Pauline Sargent's two boys lugging water for the elephants.

Miss O. U.: And didn't Vivian O'Mara's all-girl band sound good? There was Marion Holmes, Rachel Jackman, "Dot" Sullivan, Constance Gagnon, and Winifred Brissette. I thought I'd die when Eleanor Daignault, Lodia Giniusz, and Leona Beaulac rode in as bare-back riders.

Mr. I. R.: And on the way back, while we were riding on the "Haley and McCarthy Street Car," we sighted "Wally" Smith and "Leo" Wondoloski on Sessler Street.

Miss O. U.: Yes, they had "Teddy" Richardson and John Pallam cornered, trying to sell them the "Perrault & Peters Cigarette Butt Holder." A fight started when Donald Richardson dropped a twenty-five-cent cigar on the sidewalk.

Mr. I. R.: Yup — we left the street car and ran over to watch them. Albert Siano, who happened to be walking by, leaped into the heap and came up with the twenty-five cent "Fournier El Ropo Cigar."

Miss O. U.: Did you ever notice the pickets in front of the Helen Boyd and Sally Wells' "Marvelous Millinery Shoppe" on Stasinopoulos Street? There was Rita Boucher, Eunice Per-rault, Ruth Pierce, Hazel Robinson, Mary Ryan, and Phyllis Sullivan, and they were all out for the same reason. They wanted more hat in hats. "Kenny" Brightman broke it up when he came along with a wagon and started selling the "Turnbull Brothers' Ice Cream."

Mr. I. R.: After that we went into the Strahan-Szulborski Department Store. We rode up in the Snow elevator, which is run by Marjorie Twyon. Floor walker "Joe" O'Brien showed us where they were displaying the latest Mulvaney fashions. We were met by hostess Janice Moody, who showed us to our seats.

Miss O. U.: Yes, and then Russell Smith and Stanley Wollander came out and gave a trumpet blast (sort of off key, but it was all right). Then "Joe" Maloney, recently crowned "Spirit of Spring," and Stanley Macawie pulled the curtains and the fashion parade started. Lily Luippold announced as models, Irmgard Hohen-gasser, "Betty" Jacobs, Jeanette Jablonski, Agnes Chula, and Elaine Cramer. It was a good show until . . .

Mr. I. R.: Yes, until Louise Rice and Elizabeth O'Brien started to play Sokoloski's latest masterpiece . . .

Miss O. U.: "What Did Catherine Ware"? That song was too much; it emptied the store, and we arrived down on the street just in time to see "Ray" Petrin's All-Girl-Soft-Ball-Team. They were on their way out to Morell Park to play a game.

Mr. I. R.: We followed them out after I got my "Welch-Auto-Scoot" out of the "Whitney Open-Air Garage" and proceeded up Wande-loski Street to the park.

Miss O. U.: Upon arriving we saw Umpires Milasuk and Remillard being bribed with loly-pops by Eileen Scannell and Arlene Miller to give the game to "Taylor's Terrible Terrors."

Mr. I. R.: After the game, which ended in a tie, we were invited to spend the night at "St. Cyr's Hacienda," which is sunny, silent, and secluded we thought.

Miss O. U.: Yes — little did we dream that on the corner of Cominoli and Staiger Streets our rest-ing place awaited us. All was well until the "Gaudry Blast Furnace" and the "Goodnow Forging Company" started up. We could stand no more — we left. Right now I'm tired. How about you?

Mr. I. R.: I'm tired too.

Miss O. U.: Well?

Mr. I. R.: Well?

Miss O. U.: Shall we tell them?

Mr. I. R.: Sure.

Miss O. U. and Mr. I. R.: That's all there is; there isn't any more. Good night.

THOMAS RICHARD FRAWLEY

The Sea - A Lodestone That Draws Men

THE sea! Broader than all the lands on earth, it is a huge magnet that draws men and determines their destinies. Thousands of times it has broken the ties of love. It has made men rich and poor and has brought happiness and grief. Wilful in its actions it pays respect to no one. It vests its entire importance in one power — the power to attract and to hold. The sea derives its strange magnetic power from those things which it gives the men who sail. Once a man discovers the offerings of the sea, he is unwilling to give them up. He finds that it fills his thoughts, that his work must be with the sea. If he is forced to leave it, he will live only for the chance of returning to it.

Perhaps the sea has given that man a livelihood, an occupation. It has furnished him with his life work. A fisherman, a trader, an explorer — he may have been any of these. He has come to know the ways of the sea — the slight calm before the storm and the predictions of a setting sun. He loves the feel of the deck, the wind on his cheek, and the sight of approaching land. In the world of cities and factories he can find nothing to replace the joys of the past, and, as a consequence, he dreams only of the time when he again will sail. The sea has become his life, and he dwindles away in the lack of it.

Considering now the man who didn't go to sea to earn a living, one perhaps would believe that that man received nothing. However, he may have secured the thing he most desired. His quest may have been an escape from the sham and noise of land life. Perhaps he sought a place where the individual was more than a machine. Sailing, he found that for which he searched. Entering the open sea, he was on his own and felt the pride of self-dependence. He lived a quiet life and thought a great deal. He may have written down his ideas for later use; he may have composed music inspired by his reflection acquired. Thus was he affected by the sea. In his voyages he acquired that which all sailors possess — a knowledge of the minuteness of the human being as compared with the universe.

The stormy, black sea gave him that knowledge. Tossed about by the waves, his craft was a spot on an endless plain of water. If his ship failed him, he would die, and no one would know how or where he met his end.

That realization that we are very small is something not developed in many of us. To get it we should at some time in our lives go to sea. There we cannot fail to grasp in our hearts that valuable understanding. So strongly does the sea affect us that we shall never again assume the ridiculous pose of self-importance. The sea has given us true religion.

The sea attracts all types of men. We find quiet, hardworking men, thoughtful men, and adventurous men. The last group has a large majority. Adventurers have found life on land dull and have resorted to the sea to quench their boredom. They heard old sailors talking of storms, icebergs, winds, and sea battles. They were stirred by reading poems of adventure, magic, and excitement on the sea. They were tense as they read Masefield's words —

"I must go down to the sea again for the call of the running tide
Is a wild call and a clear call that may not be denied;
And all I ask is a windy day with the white clouds flying,
And the flung spray and the blown spume,
and the sea-gulls crying."

The feeling of the poet is so intense that there kindles in the soul of men the fire that will send them to seek the exciting, vibrant life at sea. Reading on, man will imagine himself at the helm of his ship and will challenge anything to defeat him. He can express his emotions with Henley's "Invictus." He may say,

"Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the Pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be

For my unconquerable soul.
In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud;
Under the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed."

Men who feel such poems will soon go to sea. They will find their adventures as others did, and they too will talk of their experiences to the youthful generation. Adventure goes with the sea; the two will never separate.

Young adventurers will see storms of a size they wouldn't believe. They will feel their ship lurch and careen into bottomless valleys, and they will rise to the tops of hundred-foot mountains of water. The flash of the lightning as it illuminates an open sea will thrill them. Nature in her glory gives all men tingling veins and active bodies.

However, adventure at sea is not confined to the workings of nature. There is often war — when the sea becomes a battlefield on which no wounded can lie. Mines and submarines threaten all vessels. Men live only for the present, for the next second may bring ear-splitting explosion and oblivion.

Then there are the battles at sea. Miles apart, the opponents fire death-laden shells easily over the distance. It is a game of death. He who fires best wins; he who is vanquished dies. The sea battles are final; victory is definite. The fighters win adventure at the price of life. They can ask no quarter. However, their love of action dims all else, and they are content.

Thus do men live and die by the sea. For centuries the sea has acted in the same manner. It will never cease to attract the chosen ones. In changing civilizations it will not change, for it, like God, is perpetual.

EMIL JOHN SLOWINSKI, JR.

Ivy Ode

Tune: Auld Lang Syne

Our school days here, so full of joy,
Too soon will be a dream,
And so we plant the ivy now,
To keep our mem'ries green.
In days to come when we have strayed
And are quite far apart,
The ivy'll hold the memories
That linger in each heart.

Chorus:

And after years have come and gone,
And youth has passed us by,
The ivy will be clinging still,
Like thoughts to Greenfield High.

GEORGE BARD BROOKS

Class Song

Tune: Auld Lang Syne

Farewell dear Alma Mater,
Our high school days are done.
Your treasures we'll keep sacred,
Our constancy you've won.
True friendships we cherish;
Your honor we salute!
In reverence we sadly part —
Your reign is absolute.

The lessons you have given us
A firm foundation bring,
For Scholarship and Loyalty
With Honor in us ring.
Your sympathy and guidance
Bear memories so fine
That, dearest Greenfield High School,
We worship at your shrine.

Start Her Sterling Service Now

IN every young girl's heart is a desire for Sterling Silver of her own. And nothing could please her more than to start her table service with a gift of a few pieces

for GRADUATION

Contrary to opinion Sterling is not expensive. A JUNIOR HOSTESS SET, which provides enough silver for foursome entertaining, costs about $25.00. Indeed, a set may be started with only four Tea Spoons at $7.00, or just a single Spoon at $1.75.

Your gifts in Sterling will be treasured forever . . . for the beauty of Sterling is everlasting. Call at your Jeweler's, today, and ask him to show you the many exquisite LUNT patterns.
